Personal Narrative

Mary Louise has been with Nicoll Black & Feig since December 2007, but has worked with many of the attorneys at Nicoll Black & Feig while previously employed with other Seattle law firms. She earned her Associate of Technical Arts Paralegal degree from Edmonds Community College in June of 1993. She has over sixteen years of experience as a paralegal. Her experience has focused primarily on complex litigation involving insurance coverage, construction defect, environmental and property damage matters.

Mary Louise has extensive litigation experience in Washington, Oregon, and Montana Superior, Appellate, and Supreme Courts; Washington and Oregon District and Ninth Circuit Courts; and has prepared multiple cases for trial. She was an integral part of the trial team that had an outstanding verdict result for their client in the St. Paul Fire & Marine Ins. Co. v. Hebert Construction, et al., U.S.D.C., Western District of Washington, Cause No. C05-00388 TSZ.

When she is not in the office, Mary Louise enjoys spending time with her family in Port Ludlow. She is an avid Husky basketball fan, reader, and wine enthusiast.
