Personal Narrative

Julie joined the staff and attorneys at Nicoll Black & Feig in March 2008. She has worked for over 12 years in the Seattle legal community as both a legal assistant and paralegal. Julie's work experiences encompass a wide range of practice areas including employment law, insurance subrogation, immigration, securities and class action litigation, general business, and complex civil litigation.

Julie obtained a B.A. in Elementary Education, with an emphasis on Special Education and English as a Second Language, from Western Washington University in June 2000. Although she ultimately did not go to work as a teacher, Julie was able to fulfill her desire to work with children in need by volunteering as a tutor with the Seattle Youth Tutoring Program, as well as volunteering for special projects in the community through United Way and the Treehouse for Kids organization.

In addition to her employment with Nicoll Black & Feig, Julie serves as an officer in the United States Navy Reserve. Her first 8 years of Reserve duty were spent as an enlisted member (intelligence analyst), and upon completion of her B.A., Julie received a direct commission into the Intelligence Officer program. When she is not at work, Julie enjoys traveling to warm sunny beaches and spending time with her husband and their infant son.
